 - scores the content of bursary package submissions determining that all requested information and documentation has been provided.
 - removes all identifying information from the essay question portion of the application.
 - makes three copies of each anonymous essay question portion of the package sending one from each applicant to the three judges.
- The judges:
 - score the essay questions based on content, spelling and grammar
 - return the anonymous packages to the Financial Secretary.
- The Financial Secretary averages the scores of the three judges from the essay questions for each applicant, then adds the averaged essay question scores to the scoring of the bursary package submissions.
