- Improves interpersonal skills, teamwork and productivity by providing ongoing communication and coaching by managers.
- Leads to greater job satisfaction and promotional opportunities.

What organizations are saying:

"We've participated in the Sponsored Employee Program for the past three years. As a leader and people manager, I believe these types of opportunities are not only the right thing to do, but they're also good for business. Our employees return with deeper skill sets, expanded networks, and a greater sense of commitment to their communities. It's also personally rewarding to help our people develop into effective future leaders – leaders who are capable, confident and kind."

~ Dave Goulart, District Vice President, Retail and Business Banking, CIBC
